

SHOW, DON'T TELL

INSTEAD OF TELLING YOUR READERS ABOUT YOUR CHARACTER, SHOW THEM BY DESCRIBING HOW THEY FEEL AND LOOK. CAN YOU MATCH UP THE DESCRIPTIONS WITH WHAT ROGER IS FEELING?

Roger's face went bright red. He ground his teeth and clenched his hands into fists. Steam was practically blowing out of his ears.

Roger was cold

Roger needed a glass of water. His face was red and he was panting like a dog. Beads of sweat sat on his forehead.

Roger was happy

Roger's teeth chattered; he wrapped his arms around himself to hug his shivering body.

Roger was sad

Roger's smile beamed from ear to ear. He danced as he walked and his heart was singing.

Roger was scared

Roger felt sick in his stomach. His knees trembled and his legs turned to jelly.

Roger was hot

Roger's bottom lip began to tremble. His eyes glazed over before breaking and releasing a single tear down his cheek.

Roger was angry
